This bill would expand the current “Guardian Program” and potentially arm teachers.

As a better way to truly make our students and staff safer, lawmakers should invest money in ensuring every school has a resource officer and a sufficient number of trained mental health professionals such as guidance counselors, school psychologists and social workers.

Professional educators know, and the voting public agrees, that teachers should not be armed with guns but with more funding to public education to address issues. We, therefore, encourage Legislators not to support the arming of teachers.
